“Did You Know:

- Your PTA is an independent nonprofit association. That means your members get to make the decisions—they approve your bylaws, elect your officers, and inform your budget and plans. While you may partner with or focus your efforts on a school, your school principal is not in charge, though you should follow school policies for community collaborations. If you are struggling with this type of collaboration, contact your PTA council. We can give you tips on how to communicate PTA decisions effectively and establish a more positive collaboration with your school administration or community.
- Your PTA is an advocacy organization—not a booster organization. Like any nonprofit, you will raise money for your cause. But your PTA should focus most of its time implementing PTA's mission. Need help with fundraising ideas? Contact us for helpful information.
- Your PTA is connected to your state and National PTA. Your PTA is connected via National PTA to approximately 24,000 other PTAs that exist to achieve the PTA mission. Since 1897, our social and policy impact has been felt in schools, in school districts, in state assemblies and on Capitol Hill. Your voice—and your members' voices—are amplified when we join together as one PTA for the good of all children in the United States.”
